2011-2012: OUR 30th SEASON!

Metropolitan Symphony Orchestra William Schrickel, Music Director & Conductor

The orchestra's 30th season, its twelfth under Music Director William Schrickel, opens with a gala concert at Orchestra Hall featuring music for choruses (VocalEssence, St. Olaf College's Manitou Singers, Magnum Chorum and The Singers) in a program that includes Holst's Hymn of Jesus and commissioned works by two Grammy-winning American composers, William Bolcom and Michael Daugherty. Philip Brunelle and Sigrid Johnson conduct the vocal forces while Schrickel leads the MSO in Samuel Barber's buoyant School for Scandal overture. Subsequent concerts feature MSO principal cellist Teresa Richardson in Elgar's eloquent Cello Concerto and the orchestra's percussion section in a thrilling piece by Thom Hasenpflug. The MSO's Family Concerts showcase theme music for fictional characters as diverse as Darth Vader, The Lone Ranger and The Simpsons, and the program concludes with The Composer is Dead, a narrated musical setting of Lemony Snicket's well-known children's book. The Tenth Symphony of Russia's greatest symphonist, Dmitri Shostakovich, is paired with Winter Bells, a work by young Russian composer Polina Nazaykinskaya. The Metropolitan Symphony Orchestra and Schrickel bring down the curtain on the ensemble's spectacular 30th season with music of Ives and Mahler, contemporaries whose revolutionary ideas altered the course of symphonic music over a hundred years ago. You won't want to miss a single note!

Concerts are free, though donations are requested. Programs subject to change.

William Schrickel and the Metropolitan Symphony Orchestra celebrate the opening of the MSO's 30th season in an extraordinary collaboration featuring music for massed choruses. The program includes premieres by two Grammy Award-winning composers: William Bolcom's dramatic Prometheus features pianist Jeffrey Biegel and depicts the Greek god who stole fire from Zeus and gave it to mortals, and Michael Daugherty's inspiring Mount Rushmore sets the words of four great American presidents.

Music of Youth & Experience Sunday, November 20 at 4pm

Trinity Lutheran Church,

115 Fourth Street North, Stillwater, MN 55082

William Schrickel, conductor

Teresa Richardson, cello

Edward Elgar – Elegy, op. 58

Edward Elgar – Cello Concerto in E minor, op. 85

Georges Bizet – Symphony #1 in C major

Two works by Elgar, including his last important composition, the poignant and autumnal Cello Concerto, provide a striking contrast to Bizet's vivacious Symphony in C, penned when the composer was only seventeen years old.

Russian Masterpieces

Sunday, March 25 at 4pm

Normandale Lutheran Church, 6100 Normandale Road, Edina, MN 55436

William Schrickel, conductor

Vincent Youmans/Dmitri Shostakovich – Tahiti Trot (Tea for Two)

Polina Nazaykinskaya – Winter Bells

Dmitri Shostakovich – Symphony #10 in E minor, op. 93

Shostakovich's powerful and personal Tenth Symphony traverses an exceptionally wide-ranging emotional terrain, while his witty setting of Tea for Two, created in 40 minutes on a bet, could not be more tongue-in-cheek. Polina Nazaykinskaya's Winter Bells is the young composer's evocation of seasonal sounds and memories of her native Russia.

The Composer Is Dead!!

Gioacchino Rossini – William Tell Overture

Danny Elfman – The Simpsons Theme

Steve Reich – Clapping Music

John Williams – The Imperial March from Star Wars Suite

Nathaniel Stookey/Lemony Snicket – The Composer is Dead

The composer is dead!! How did it happen? Listeners of all ages will enjoy unraveling the mystery presented in the well-known book by best-selling author Lemony Snicket. This family-friendly 1-hour concert also includes orchestral pieces that have become famous musical themes for fictional characters.

Orchestral Pioneers: Ives & Mahler

Sunday, May 13, 2012 at 4pm

Central Lutheran Church,

333 South 12th Street, Minneapolis, MN 55404

William Schrickel, conductor

Thom Hasenpflug – Bicksa for 4 Percussionists

Charles Ives – Three Places in New England, S.7

Gustav Mahler – Symphony #1 in D major

Ives' Three Places in New England, at turns dreamy, funny and haunting, is a brilliantly descriptive masterpiece. Mahler, an Ives admirer, led the premiere of his own groundbreaking, heaven-storming First Symphony in 1888.
